Graduating Exercises at West Point Academy

Members of the graduating class at West Point standing in line to receive their diplomas, which were bestowed by General Pershing after having delivered an eloquent address.
(Keystone View Co.)

GRADUATING exercises at West Point on June 12 of this year took place under smiling skies and in the presence of a notable gathering of military dignitaries and other commencement guests. Seated beside General Pershing was General Nelson A. Miles, soldier hero of past generations, who came to see his grandson, Miles Reber, get his commission. Standing in the shadow of the West Point historic monument, General Pershing presented commissions as officers to 261 graduates of the United States Military Academy and outlined their future professional mission. Two of the graduates were Filipinos, who received commissions in the Philippine Scouts.

The address of General Pershing was listened to with profound attention and frequently punctuated by applause. Asserting that under the National Defense act the nation had for the first time a definite military policy such as George Washington had visualized, General Pershing told the graduates of their obligations in the upbuilding of our future armies, in the event that our young manhood should ever again be called upon to bear the burden of war.

"Our people want no more war," he said, "least of all those who know most of its horrors, but no intelligent citizen can ignore the lessons of the past, and ordinary prudence bids us take heed lest war should come upon us unawares. As older officers pass out we plan through our training system for younger men to follow and bear the torch."

Head of the American Army in genial mood at the graduation exercises at West Point, in which he was the central figure. He emphasized in his speech the qualities of loyalty, courage and fidelity required of the new officers.

WINS PRIX DE ROME

Francis Scott Bradford, ex-service man, 25 years old, who was wounded during the World War and and who, it was recently announced, had won the Prix de Rome, carrying with it a three-year scholarship of $1,000 a year for study at the American Academy in Rome. (P. & A. Photos.)

TRIBUTE TO SAILOR DEAD

American sailor lads in their last long sleep in the Pacific Ocean were remembered on Memorial Day when a forty-foot floral anchor from the American Legion Post 177 was lowered into the ocean from the battleship Nevada, anchored off Venice, Cal.

THE famous definition

tion of genius as an infinite capacity for taking pains expresses the attitude held toward his art by Francis Scott Bradford, the 25-year-old artist who recently won the Prix de Rome. His father is a lawyer, and young Bradford expected to follow the same profession. During his service abroad in the World War, however, he saw a good deal of French art in academies and museums, which roused in him an interest in the subject. Following his return he resumed his law studies, but the call of art grew stronger and he adopted it as a profession. "I have no patience," he is quoted as saying, "with the idea that inspiration is a spontaneous thing, a gift of the gods. It's my belief that it comes as the result of hard work and serious thought. I've cudgelled my brains for weeks for an idea that would be fresh and original, and when I've once found it I've often worked out my whole plan in fifteen minutes."

RUNAWAY TROLLEY

Almost unique among accidents was that which happened in New York City on June 7 when an Amsterdam Avenue surface car raced back down the eight-block grade from 117th Street to La Salle Place and, leaping the rails, cut away the entire front of a large apartment house on the corner. It was a one-man trolley. Its operator was the first to leap to safety after it had started down the grade. Two women, who felt they would be killed if they jumped, stretched themselves out on the floor of the car. They were knocked unconscious when the car crashed into the building. Two other passengers who leaped to the street were cut and otherwise injured. A girl who was about to enter a candy store in the building was stopped by the shower of bricks, and when she jumped back was struck by the car, which severed both her legs, causing death.

YOUTHFUL PATRIOTS SWEARING ALLEGIANCE

One of the picturesque features of the recent meeting of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League of New York City in Central Park was this act of swearing allegiance to the flag carried out by students of Public School 76. All the girls were clad in white and stood beneath and about a ribbon tent crowned with flowers, forming together a charming spectacle.

MOTHER AND SON RECEIVE COLLEGE DIPLOMAS

Mrs. Susie A. Porterfield and her son, Dr. Henry Porterfield, received diplomas at the same time from the Pennsylvania State College on June 12, each having completed a four-year course of studies. Not satisfied with this achievement, Mrs. Porterfield will pursue post-graduate studies and work for an advanced degree next year. The incident is almost unique in the annals of education.

RUNAWAY CAR WRECKS BUILDING

One girl was killed and three other persons were severely injured as a result of an extraordinary car accident that happened June 7 at the corner of Amsterdam Avenue and La Salle Place, New York City. The trolley was going up a steep hill at this point when the car suddenly developed motor trouble and began to slide down hill at a forty-mile rate. When it hit a curve at La Salle Place and 125th Street it shot from the tracks, struck the building on the corner and knocked down the supports of several floors, causing 200 tenants to flee in panic.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES IN PARIS ON MEMORIAL DAY IN HONOR OF AMERICANS WHO FELL IN THE WORLD WAR
Gathering of troops and citizens at the Arc de Triomphe in Paris on the morning of May 30 to express the gratitude and reverence of the French for the Americans who came to their help at the most critical moment of the war and helped to win the greatest struggle in the history of civilization. American marines and French troops took part in the ceremonies, which were marked by deep emotion.
 (International.)

THE Stars and Stripes and the tri-color were in evidence throughout France on Memorial Day, and homage was paid not only by the French Government but by a host of the French people to the American dead who fell in the great war for the preservation of civilization. On every grave of an American soldier in the whole area of France flowers were placed as a tribute and a proof of gratitude felt by the people of the greatest republic of the Old World toward the fallen warriors of the greatest Republic of the New. Premier Poincaré represented the Government and Marshal Fayolle the French Army in the impressive services held at the beautiful cemetery of Suresnes, on the slopes of Mount Valerien, overlooking Paris. The Marshal spoke feelingly of "the brave American boys who reposed within sight of the city they assisted in keeping outside the reach of the enemy." America was represented by her Ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, who delivered an eloquent eulogy. Standing rigidly at attention, fifty sailors from the U. S. S. Pittsburgh and twenty picked men from the American Legion listened to the address while the Ambassador's words were carried also to a vast and reverent throng of French citizens. Two battalions of French soldiers stood guard over the tombs of their American comrades while their bands played alternately the "Marseillaise" and "The Star-Spangled Banner." At another service in the American Church of the Holy Trinity, Marshal Foch of France, Sir William Robertson of England, Lieut. Gen. Baron Jacques of Belgium and Major Gen. Giovanni Marietti of Italy spoke in praise of American soldiers.

IMMENSE OUTPOURING AT COMMEMORATIVE SERVICES IN SURESNES CEMETERY
Representatives of all the Allies who fought shoulder to shoulder in the World War joined with Ambassador Herrick in observing Memorial Day in Paris. Apart from the military parade, there was a great outpouring of citizens bearing aloft American flags to show that France and the other allies had not forgotten the great part that America played in the war. Ambassador Herrick is here seen, accompanied by Marshal Fayolle, approaching the speaker's stand.

DERBY WINNER

Uncounted thousands from all parts of Great Britain witnessed the running of the Derby on June 6 at Epsom Downs. The race was won by Papyrus, much to the satisfaction of the large throng of Americans present, for the winner is the son of Tracery, who was American bred. Donoghue, the jockey of Papyrus, rode his mount with rare judgment. He got his horse ahead only after the quarter-mile post had been passed. This gave Papyrus the inside track around the turn. Fifty yards from the finish Papyrus was a half length to the good, and in response to Donoghue's urging he stretched this margin to a full length at the finish. The time was 2:38.

ITALIAN BEAUTY

Signorina Gina Letti, who is said to be Italy's most beautiful blond, a distinction all the more rare because brunettes predominate in that country.

(Kadel & Herbert.)

WINNER OF DERBY

Papyrus, winner of the greatest of all British horse races, the Derby, is the son of Tracery, which was bred by August Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club, at his nursery stud in Kentucky. The betting on Papyrus was 100 to 15, against Pharos, who came in second, 6 to 1, and Parth, who was third, 33 to 1.

The Prince of Wales is making an extended tour of England at present and has been greeted with vociferous demonstrations of affection and loyalty wherever he has gone. A quaint Yorkshire welcome in local dialect is here shown stretched across a street of Rotherham.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE OF IRELAND MAKING CAMPAIGN ADDRESS

The electoral campaign in Ireland is now in progress and great meetings are being held in all the leading cities of the new State, while excitement is reaching fever heat. President W. T. Cosgrave is here seen speaking for the first time at an election meeting in Kilkenny. The military operations of the Republican element have practically subsided.

SHRINE FIRE- WORKS DISPLAY

"Bombs bursting in air," as pictured by Francis Scott Key in "The Star-Spangled Banner," were made real on June 7 when, as a close to the greatest fraternal conclave ever held, an elaborate display of dazzling light illuminated the Capitol. This photograph, made in the shadow of the Washington Monument, shows the monument itself at right and a silhouette of Memorial Continental Hall at the left.

SCOUT CRUISER BREAKS RECORD

United States scout cruiser Milwaukee, built at Tacoma, Wash., which on her builders' speed trial trip made a speed of thirty-six knots, a little more than forty-one miles an hour, which is said to be greater than any speed ever attained by a vessel larger than a destroyer in the history of the world. This tremendous speed was made in the face of a stiff wind in the Straits of Juan de Fuca and with one valve yet to be opened on the turbines and with speed still in reserve. The vessel at times was generating better than 100,000 horsepower.

FRENCH GLIDER ON INITIAL FLIGHT

Georges Barbot making his first American flight in his little "flivver plane" over Roosevelt Field, Long Island, on June 1. He made a speed of ninety miles an hour, and the flight was witnessed with interest by a large throng who had been attracted by the reputation gained by Barbot before he came to this country. It will be remembered that he crossed the English Channel and returned in what was practically a glider machine, having a motor of only fifteen horsepower, winning thereby a prize offered for the first to perform the feat by the French Aeronautical Society. Following his initial flight in this country, Barbot's plane was wrecked in New Jersey, he himself escaping without injury.

MONSTER FISH CAUGHT OFF LONG ISLAND

It is known that mackerel frequently grow to a large size, but what is believed to be a record catch was made when this 400-pound mackerel was captured recently during a fishing cruise off the coast of Long Island. It was so large and heavy that it required the combined efforts of a number of men to lift it into the boat. It is here shown as photographed in a New York store on June 5.

QUICK DEMOLITION

Before the discovery of dynamite and other powerful explosives it would have been necessary to remove this tall chimney brick by brick in case its destruction was desired. Today we do things more quickly, with the result that a single powerful blast of dynamite placed at the base of this 134-foot chimney stack at a Government filling plant in Hays, Middlesex, England, brought the towering structure to the ground in a moment. The chimney stack is here seen falling and crumbling as it falls after the fuses had been fired.

MOTHER OF THREE WINS COLLEGE DEGREE

Mrs. Katherine Benton Clay of Newark, N. J., here shown with her three children, John, Richard and Katherine, who graduated from Barnard College recently with an A. B. degree and special honors in modern languages, despite the fact that she had to do almost all of her studying in the subway and tube trains. She modestly disclaims any special merit, however, and declares that the real heroine of the story is her eleven-year-old daughter Katherine, who did a great deal of the housework and looked after the younger boys, keeping them out of mischief.

BOMBS RAIN FROM THE SKIES

One of the features of the Shriners' Convention at Washington was a sham attack planned by aviators at Bolling Field. Bombs were dropped from a flying squadron upon a hastily constructed "village" on the field beneath, with results shown in this unusual photograph. The bombs were remarkably well timed and accurately aimed, with the result that the supposedly hostile village was wiped out of existence.

UGLINESS TO MASK BEAUTY

Contortionable mask to be used by chorus girls in a forthcoming theatrical performance that will make them all appear alike. How far this grotesque and repulsive feature will appeal to the public is yet to be demonstrated.

KLANSWOMEN IN TEXAS PARADE

An unusual spectacle was witnessed in Fort Worth, Texas on June 9 when 2,500 women in the robes and hoods of the Women's Auxiliary to the Ku Klux Klan paraded through the principal business streets. All but the three women who rode at the head of the parade were masked.

REAL TIGER MASCOT FOR PRINCETON FOOTBALL SQUAD

John F. Howard, father of a member of Princeton's last year's football team, promised his son that if the team won against Yale he would present them with a live tiger. Princeton did triumph and Mr. Howard, on his return from a recent trip around the world, brought the tiger along in order to fulfill his end of the bargain. The brute is being cared for in the Princeton garage and is here shown with the younger Howard. Some excitement is promised if Yale brings her bulldog on the field in the 1923 game with Princeton.

What a change has been wrought in styles by fifty years is shown by the dress on the left worn by Miss Rebecca Smith at her graduation from Mount Holyoke College in 1873, with its hand-sewn flounces and demi-train, and the one worn on the right by Miss Marion Lewis of the class of 1923.

JUNE is the month

not only of roses and brides but of college commencements, and from the doors of educational institutions throughout the land are pouring hundreds of ardent, hopeful, enthusiastic young men and women, who, having won their collegiate degrees, are eager for the sterner struggle in the arena of life.

A gathering of several thousand persons—students with their relatives and friends—saw General Parsons confer degrees upon 2,840 men and women students of Columbia College, Barnard College and the various schools and departments of the university, as well as honorary degrees upon eight distinguished men on June 7. The exercises provided a scene that only a great university in a cosmopolitan city like New York could offer. Among candidates for degrees, who are men and women of all ages and conditions of life from every section of the country and many parts of the world, nearly every race and nation was represented. Alongside the tall, good-natured American college students were scholarly looking little men from Japan and China, brown-skinned students from India and now and again a negro.

SPEAKER SCORING ON BROWER'S HOME-RUN HIT IN BEST NEW YORK GAME OF THE SEASON

No more exciting game has been seen in the Yankee Stadium this year than that played by the Yankees and Cleveland June 10 before 55,000 spectators. The Yankees beat the Indians by a score of 8 to 7. A feature of the game was the two home runs made by Brower of the Cleveland, one in the third and the other in the fifth inning. In the latter case Tris Speaker, who had been walked by Hoyt, preceded Brower across the plate. As shown in this picture, Brower is legging it to third.

ARTIFICIAL LIGHTNING PHOTOGRAPHED

One of the photographs taken in the course of the demonstration at Pittsfield, Mass., of the General Electric Company's new 2,000,000-volt transformers which produce artificial lightning flashes and roars. The triangular flare of lacy light is the result of the discharge of 1,500,000 volts of three-phase alternating current at sixty cycles. The spark points at each corner are nine feet apart. The separate threads of light visible in the centre and around the edge of the picture represent the succeeding waves of electrons generated by the alternating current. The human eye is neither quick enough nor highly tuned enough to perceive these lines, and the camera had to be equipped with a lens of quartz through which the rays penetrated to the plate.

ENTIRE HOUSES MOVED BY BOAT

In order to make room for her new State Capitol West Virginia has resorted to this unique method of removing twelve houses from their old sites to another across the Kanawha River. Pittsburgh contractors, who were employed for the work, have carried it on with marked success at an immense saving of time and money. (Wide World Photos.)

NAVY INVENTION DESIGNED TO ELIMINATE STATIC

W. J. Scott and the clearphone which he has invented. The design of the instrument is to eliminate the static in the air which has proved such a hindrance and irritation in the matter of radio messages. The new instrument is being tested for adoption by the Navy Department, which is the most advanced of all the Government departments in the use of the wonderful new science. It is said that remarkable results have been obtained by this device. (International.)

ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS ROAR AT SHAM BATTLE MANOEUVRES UNDER THE EYES OF PERSHING

Realistic and spirited in the extreme were the battle manoeuvres that took place at Jersey City on June 9 when General Pershing, in company with a number of State dignitaries, dedicated Pershing Field, Jersey City's sports ground and park. All branches of the army except the cavalry participated in the manoeuvres, going through the things they experienced on the fields of France. Anti-aircraft guns are here seen driving off a squadron of bombing planes. (Wide World Photos.)

For You— Pleasant Days of Cool Comfort

COOL, comfortable feet permit restful relaxation on hot Summer days. They leave your mind free to enjoy delightful outings and add to the recreative qualities of your vacation.

Cantilever Shoes are made of fine soft materials that are easy on the foot and pleasing to the eye. These shoes are trimly proportioned and in keeping with this season's styles.

Cantilever Shoes give the feet free play and wonderful comfort. Swollen, uncomfortable feet, caused by retarded circulation, are liberated in Cantilever Shoes. The arch of the Cantilever Shoe, flexible like the arch of your foot, curves up when the shoe is laced to follow the exact contour of the under foot. This gives gentle, helpful support to your arch without restraining its muscular action. Your foot muscles are allowed to strengthen, through exercise, and weak arches are corrected and prevented. Circulation is free.

The natural lines and moderate heels of the Cantilever Shoe permit your foot to be comfortable, as Nature intended. Your toes have room to straighten out. There is no binding anywhere and your foot feels at home and at ease.

Women have discovered that restful Cantilevers give them the knack of appearing cool and attractive during the warm weather. They have learned to make Summer a season for ease and comfort and to accomplish more without fatigue. In nearly every city in the United States there is a Cantilever Store where you will be carefully fitted by men who understand the requirements of your feet.

Except in New York City and Chicago there is only one Cantilever Store in each city. At the left is a partial list of the stores that have been selected to sell Cantilever Shoes. If none of these is convenient, write the manufacturers, Morse & Burt Company, 11 Carlton Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., for the address of the nearest dealer and a new booklet on feet and shoes.

WREAKING VENGEANCE

Frank Sanceri of Los Angeles is shown above lashed to the flagpole where he was found after a mob of men who signed themselves "ex-service men" and "white knights" had beaten him into unconsciousness. He was charged with having been one of a group of several men who had kidnapped, drugged and attacked a thirteen-year-old girl. A warning placard was left, stating the crime for which the man had been whipped and charging the police and city authorities with deplorable laxity in the matter of punishment. (International.)

BROAD STREET RAILROAD STATION, PHILADELPHIA, SWEEPED BY FIRE

General view of the yards and depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad Station at Broad Street, Philadelphia, which were badly damaged by fire on the morning of June 11. It is thought that the loss may amount to $2,000,000. The intense heat melted the wheels of coaches and locomotives and welded them in a solid mass to the rails. (International.)

TRAIN WRECK

Nine persons were injured on June 12 when a westbound electric train of the Pennsylvania Road sideswiped another at Villanova Station, tearing up the rails for 500 feet. Panic ensued among passengers. (P. & A. Photos.)

FATAL ACCIDENT

Wrecked train at Durand, Mich., in which five persons were killed and twenty-five or more injured — most of them being members of the Knights Templar. A defective rail was the cause of the disaster. (Underwood & Underwood.)

VETERAN CATCHER COMES TO GIANTS

Quite a stir was caused in the baseball world recently by the news of a trade whereby Hank Gowdy and John Watson of the Boston Braves came to the New York Giants in exchange for Jess Barnes and Earl Smith of the latter team. It is understood that no cash was involved in the transaction. Gowdy has had a long and honorable record in the majors, and it was largely his heavy batting and phenomenal catching with the Braves in 1914 which enabled them to beat the supposedly invincible Athletics in four straight games and capture the World Series for that year. Another interesting fact connected with Gowdy is that he was the first prominent baseball player to enlist at the outbreak of the World War. It is believed that he will be of great service to the New York club, especially in the coaching of young pitchers, where his long experience will stand him in good stead. Barnes has done excellent work in the box for many years for the New Yorks and was the hero of the World Series in 1921. Smith, while a fairly good catcher and an excellent batter, has proved somewhat difficult for McGraw to handle, but may do first-class work under new surroundings.
